

Carl's 6th Birthday in the Spirit World

January 26, 2011 — The 6th anniversary of Carl's transition to the Spirit World

Today, I received this email from Peggy Blake, on the 6th anniversary of Carl's transition to the Spirit World. I was quite amazed at what Peggy had to say. She had no idea the true meaning behind this event. This certainly proves that Carl is still sending messages to us.

Due to the oncoming snowstorm, I decided to go out early enough today to complete some errands before the snowfall. I happened to go by a flower shop in my town. Each day, the people who run the shop have a sign out front that says: "If your name is "blankety-blank" stop in for a free rose." Every day there is a different name in the blankety-blank space.

Today, as I drove by the shop, the sign read, "If your name is "CARL", stop in for a free rose." I thought it was interesting that of all the names in the world, they happened to pick Carl's name. Today, the anniversary of his leaving planet earth...why today and why his name?

The synchronicity was astounding to me. What a great way for Carl to say hello.

The shop is called McKenna's Flower Shop, Boswell Avenue, Norwich, CT.

My Response to Peggy

Hi Peggy,

Carl was always preaching (yes I will use the word preaching in this case instead of teaching) how it was a waste to take flowers out to a cemetery, to put on a grave. He used to say, "There is nothing there but bones and stones." He used to say it was so much better to take one flower and put in a small vase besides the picture of the loved on you wanted to remember.

I often follow his teaching on the anniversary of his transition. I was going to do this today, but with the storm I have decided to light a candle by his picture instead. On Carl's first anniversary in spirit, (See Diary Entry entitled: Carl's First Birthday in the Spirit World) though, I wanted to get a bunch of white roses, with one red rose, as was on his coffin. I was impressed to go to a certain grocery store, and when I got there, I was looking at the flowers. I was spun around and there was one bouquet of all white roses with a single red rose.

This is Carl's way of acknowledging what was done in the past, and he provided the flower today. He is also saying hello on his "birthday" in Spirit. I can't thank you enough for sharing this with me. It really means so very much.

Sid
